TRANSFORMERS WAR WITHIN THE AGE OF WRATH

Civil war era Cybertron. The once again united Autobot forces, under the overall command of Ultra Magnus, prepare for a formal ceasefire with the rogue Decepticon and Ultracon forces. Millions of years of conflict appears to be at an end. But, at the critical moment, Starscream's Predacons attack, and Grimlock is killed. Though the Predacon strike is thwarted, an old enemy reappears to plunge Cybertron into a terrifying new age...

DECLARATIONS OF WAR

Greetings Transfans,

Decided to mix it up a bit this time around. We have a few questions from fans about the whos and whats and wheres, PLUS something a little different at the end. And by the way, to answer the hundred or so questions we get each month about this: There still isn't a War Within toyline planned...but we can all keep saying our secret prayers to Primus (or at least to Hasbro).

Dreamwave!

I just bought War Within Volume 1 Pocket and it's really good. Now I hear that there's a Volume 3 comic being released in August. I'd really like to collect this, and was wondering if Volume 2 will ever come out on Pocket format, so I can understand Volume 3.

Thanks,
Paul de Banzie

There aren't any plans as of yet for a Volume 2 PocketBook. The Volume 2 TPB just came out and is chockfull of lots of goodies: faction explanations, creator interviews, character designs and more. Now, if the full-size trade does indeed sell out—and there's demand—sure, we can print out some Pockets. So let's wait and see!

Hey guys and girls,
Are the clones that are mentioned in "Age of Wrath" the same clones we see in G1 with Megatron?

How did these Seekers come to look like this when the War Within Seekers are Cybertronian in appearance?
I take it this will be explained, but I was hoping the clones would resemble War Within seekers! The WW Seekers look totally badass!

Here's what Simon Furman has to say. About the Air clone jets: "Yes and no—the two are certainly linked." Why the seekers appear this way: "They were created by a race with future knowledge..." And your last question: "You'll learn more in Issue #4!"

Leave it to Furman to be his cryptic self when answering these questions. I guess the likable Brit can't exactly give away everything, can he?

Hi!
I've read both series and loved them both. I got thinking of all the Transformers from G1 that have yet to be introduced. I was kind of curious if anyone else thought these Autobots/Decepticons should get a War Within treatment in the next series or at some future time. For starters, how about Sky Lynx and the G1 Predacons?
Tiffanno!

Ask and ye shall receive! For this, we went to the man who lives, breathes and (quite possibly) eats Transformers: Mr. Don Figueroa:

"For Sky Lynx, I see him originally having an actual robot mode, but maybe he got damaged along the way and had to be reconfigured into a shuttle/carrier. I would probably keep his shuttle and carrier mode, (but Cybertronize the shuttle) and keep the combined dinobird mode but omit the lynx mode, and just give it a Duocon-style robot mode.

"I did a small cameo of one of the Predacons in the first WW series—I see them as a bunch of ancient-looking Cybertronian siege machines, almost Roman/Greek-like with a lot of elaborate designs and symbols but still very mechanical-looking. Maybe a tank-like battering ram for Headstrong, a drill tank for Razorclaw (imagine the mane as part of the spinning drill head), a Divebomber for Divebomb (ironic eh?), Rampage would probably be a catapult of some kind (since cats are springy) and Tantrum as a flamethrower-type tank."

Hi everybody,
Who thinks there's room for the Japanese Characters in War Within? I do! License issues aside, WW is the perfect place to bring in the Takara line! Characters such as Victory Leo, Overlord, Deathsaurus and Dai-Atlas fit in with the look of the Transformers in the WW series—bulkied up and armed to the teeth!

Did anyone else see Don's and others depictions of these characters in Issue 78 of Toyfare? They were excellent! I'd particularly love to see characters like Overlord and Deathsaurus fighting side by side with their leader WW Megatron!

Darth Zealous

Here's what Don had in mind for a WW treatment of the Japanese 'Bots:

"You know, I have all these 'Bots and if you look at them, they all seem to be Cybertronian-designed already, apart from Victory Leo. I don't see a robot having a lion beast mode millions of years before earth lions existed, but he does have a jet mode that's very Cybertronian. I'd say all of them are pretty much bulkied and armed to the teeth. So to be honest, if I was to do WW again and all these guys were major players, I'd leave them alone for the most part. I'd probably make Overlord's tank mode a hover tank or something, and maybe omit Victory Leo's lion mode, but they probably wouldn't change too much. However...if the story were set four million years in the future, THEN I could go nuts and do some upgrades, add-ons and more..."

Well, time again to pack up the mailbag and get outta here. But before I go, I should point out that if you have an idea about who you think should get the War Within Makeover, let us know. Make sure it's a character that hasn't been seen yet, and maybe, just maybe, we will ask one of the experts around here what they would do about it!

Keep on truckin' Transfans!

#3 NEXT-MONTH

THE SAME... BUT DIFFERENT!
All Clones are the same, right? Wrong. Desperate to uncover the secret of MEGATRON'S boundless army and his newfound power, the remaining rag-tag band of AUTOBOT insurgents attempt to extract and study one Clone Warrior from the dread Aerospace Extermination Squadron. But NIGHTBEAT, GETAWAY, HOSEHEAD, SIREN, JOYRIDE and SLAPDASH may just have bitten off a lot more than they can chew!

WARLANDS RETURNS!

DREAMWAVE AND DBPRO GO BACK TO THE BEGINNING

At long last, Dreamwave returns to Warlands, the title that helped propel DW, led by the incredible Dabel Brothers! Series creator Pat Lee is charting the course, while Ernst Dabel, President of Dabel Brothers Production will be writing the series. Lynx Studios' Edu Francisco (Legacy) will handle the penciling duties with Etienne St-Laurent digitally painting.

Dreamwave President Pat Lee is thrilled for the return of his creation. "Warlands is something I hold very dear to my heart. It represents Dreamwave's birth and one of our first original properties. Warlands has hundreds of characters and is extremely epic in proportion; it is a large part of who I am today," shares Pat Lee, "DBPro shared many of the same ideas we had for Warlands. This story is part of Dreamwave's heritage and we definitely owe it to Warlands to bring it back with the best art team possible."

"I have always loved Warlands, since I first discovered it," Ernst Dabel says. "My brother Les and I always looked up to Pat since we first saw Warlands Issue #1. Pat inspired us so that we could start our company, in fact."

"From the very start Pat had something in mind for this new series." Dabel continues, "So when we showed him the artwork and where the story would go, Pat was extremely pleased because we were all on the same page."

This series will follow the dark days preceding the First War of the Races when Lord Malagen turned his hungry gaze to the East. Even though they are already falling prey to Lord Malagen's machinations, The Realms of the East are completely unaware of his ultimate goal, to crush them to his will and feast on them as he did in the west. Look for the return of several original, fan favorite Warlands characters including Shrogran, Aalok, Vardemis and many more!

Warlands: Malagen's Campaign will be released on a monthly basis, starting January 2005—so get ready, as Dreamwave and the Dabel Brothers prepare for war!

A limited edition Warlands preview ashcan can be found at www.DreamwaveProd.com or www.DabelBrothers.com.
